

Speaking of Music: David Byrne, October 8, 1991, 1 of 2

Identifier

SOM.1991.10.08.A

Description

Recorded on October 8, 1991 as part of the San Francisco Exploratorium's Speaking of Music series, Charles Amirkhanian talks with David Byrne about his album, "Uh-Oh", which was scheduled to be released four months after this recording. Byrne talks about the heavy Brazilian and Afro-Cuban influences he brought to the album. Listen to a number of recordings and videos of David's solo or collaborative work, along with a piece by another artist (Tom Zé). David also plays a couple of songs from "Uh-Oh" live. In the second half, David briefly discusses his early years and then takes a number of questions from the audience regarding art, politics, and personal motivation.

Musical Selections

Make Believe Mambo (video) -- She's Mad -- Walk in the Dark -- Tiny Town -- Something Ain't Right -- [two other selections with Tom Zé]

Artists

Amirkhanian, Charles (features)

Byrne, David, 1952- (features)

Zé, Tom, 1936- (features)